11 JESUS CASARES-ALVARADO,

CASE NO: 12-CV-1892 W
12-CR-793 W

13 Petitioner,

ORDER DENYING HABEAS
CORPUS RELIEF UNDER 28
U.S.C. § 2255 [DOC. 20]

14 v.
15

16 UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,

17
18 Respondent.
19
20

21 On July 30, 2012, Petitioner Jesus Casares-Alvarado, a federal prisoner
22 proceeding pro se, commenced proceedings for habeas corpus relief under 28 U.S.C.
23 § 2255.(Pet. [Doc. 20].) Respondent United States of America (“Government”)
24 opposes. (Gov’t Opp’n [Doc. 22].) The Court decides the matter on the papers
25 submitted and without oral argument. See S.D. Cal. Civ. L.R. 7.1(d.1). For the reasons
26 below, the Court DENIES Petitioner’s request for habeas relief.

1 I. BACKGROUND

2 On March 26, 2012, Petitioner pled guilty before this Court to one count of 3 illegal reentry of a removed or deported alien in violation of 8 U.S.C. § 1326. (Plea
4 Agreem't [Doc. 11] 2-3.) Petitioner's plea was taken after he entered into a plea
5 agreement with the Government. (See Plea Agreem't.) For sentencing purposes,
6 Petitioner and the Government jointly recommended a base offense level of 8, -2 or -3
7 for acceptance of responsibility, and -2 for departure for Fast-Track. (See id. at 7.)
8 Petitioner also purported to waive his right to appeal and to collaterally attack his 9 resulting conviction and sentence under certain conditions:

10
11 In exchange for the Government's concessions in this plea agreement, 12 defendant waives, to the full extent of the law, any right to appeal or to 13 collaterally attack the conviction and sentence, except a post-conviction
14 collateral attack based on a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, 15 unless the Court imposes a custodial sentence above the high end of the 16 guideline range recommended by the Government pursuant to this 17 agreement at the time of sentencing. term. If the custodial sentence is 18 greater than the high end of that range, the defendant may appeal, but the 19 Government will be free to support on appeal the sentence actually 20 imposed. If defendant believes the Government's recommendation is not 21 in accord with this plea agreement, defendant will object at the time of 22 sentencing; otherwise the objection will be deemed waived.

19 (Id. at 10.)

20 Petitioner expressly acknowledged the knowing and voluntary nature of his guilty plea,
21 and his understanding of the terms of the plea agreement therein. (Id. at 5, 11.)

22 On June 25, 2012, the Court conducted a sentencing hearing. (See Gov't Opp'n 23 3:15-16.) The Court sentenced Petitioner to a term of custody of 50 months, reflecting 24 the low-end of the guideline range for the new offense level, including one year of 25 supervised release. (Pre-Sentence Rep. [Doc. 13] 9; Judgment [Doc. 18] 3.)

26 On July 30, 2012, Petitioner filed his present motion for habeas relief under 28
27
28

1 U.S.C. § 2255. (See Pet.) Petitioner alleges two grounds for relief¹: (1) violation of due
2 process under the Fifth Amendment and (2) ineffective assistance of counsel. (Id. at 3 6-7.) Petitioner seeks to stay the judgment of removal and dismiss the deportation
4 order. (Id. at 3.) The Government opposed Petitioner's motion on September 19, 2012.
5 (See Gov't Opp'n.)

7 II. LEGAL STANDARD

8 Under 28 U.S.C. § 2255, a federal sentencing court is authorized to discharge or 9 re-sentence a defendant if it concludes that "the sentence was imposed in violation of 10 the Constitution or laws of the United States, or that the court was without jurisdiction
11 to impose such sentence, or that the sentence was in excess of the maximum authorized
12 by law, or is otherwise subject to collateral attack." 28 U.S.C. § 2255(a). This statute
13 is intended to alleviate the burden of habeas corpus petitions filed by federal prisoners
14 in the district of confinement, by providing an equally broad remedy in the more
15 convenient jurisdiction of the sentencing court. See United States v. Addonizio, 442
16 U.S. 178, 185 (1979); Hernandez v. Campbell, 204 F.3d 861, 864 n.4 (9th Cir. 1999).

17 The remedy available under § 2255 is as broad and comprehensive as that 18 provided by a writ of habeas corpus. See United States v. Addonizio, 442 U.S. 178, 184-
19 85 (1979). But this "does not encompass all claimed errors in conviction and 20 sentencing." Id. at 187. A mere error of law does not provide a basis for collateral attack 21 unless the claimed error "resulted in a complete miscarriage of justice or in a proceeding 22 inconsistent with the rudimentary demands of fair procedure." Hamilton v. United 23 States, 67 F.3d 761, 763-64 (9th Cir. 1995) (quoting United States v. Timmreck, 441
24 U.S. 780, 783-84 (1979)).
25
26

27 ¹The Petitioner also claims that he did not receive proper medical care while in custody
28 for a prior felony. This claim, even if true, is not a valid basis to undermine the validity of his current conviction and sentence.

1 III. DISCUSSION

2 Petitioner argues two grounds for relief under § 2255: violation of due process
3 and ineffective assistance of counsel. (Pet. 6.) In its opposition, the Government
4 contends that Petitioner's right to collaterally attack his conviction and sentence
5 through § 2255 is waived as a consequence of Petitioner's participation in the plea
6 agreement. (Gov't Opp'n 3.) This Court agrees.

7 Courts have repeatedly upheld the validity of appeal waivers on public policy
8 grounds. See United States v. Navarro-Botello, 912 F.2d 318, 321-22 (9th Cir. 1990);
9 accord United States v. Wiggins, 905 F.2d 51, 53 (4th Cir. 1990). Courts will enforce
10 a Petitioner's appeal waiver if (1) the waiver is knowingly and voluntarily made, and (2)
11 the waiver, by its terms, waives the right to appeal. United States v. Nunez, 223 F.3d
12 956, 958 (9th Cir. 2000). The same standard applies to waivers of collateral attack.
13 See United States v. Abarca, 985 F.2d 1012, 1014 (9th Cir. 1993).

14
15 A. Petitioner Knowingly and Voluntarily Entered into the Plea
16 Agreement

17 In analyzing the knowing and voluntary nature of Petitioner's waiver, the Court
18 considers the circumstances surrounding the plea agreement's signing and entry.
19 United States v. Baramdyka, 95 F.3d 840, 843 (9th Cir. 1996). Here, Petitioner signed
20 the plea agreement waiving his right to collateral attack and represented that the guilty
21 plea was knowing and voluntary. (Plea Agreem't 9-10, 5.) Petitioner certified that he 22 had read the plea agreement (or had it read to him in his native language), discussed
23 its terms with defense counsel, and fully understood its meaning and effect. (Id. at 11.)

24 Contrary to Petitioner's present argument of ineffective assistance of counsel,
25 Petitioner expressly certified that he was satisfied with counsel's representation. (Id.) A
26 properly argued claim of ineffective assistance of counsel may cause a plea or sentencing 27 agreement to be unenforceable when the ineffective counsel claim challenges the 28 voluntariness of the waiver itself. Guerra-Tapia v. United States, 2010 WL 4009424,

1 at *1 (S.D. Cal. Oct. 8, 2010) (citing Washington, 422 F.3d at 871). However,
2 Petitioner's ineffective assistance of counsel claim rests on allegations that the public
3 defender failed to argue a credible defense and aligned with prosecutors and the 4 probation officer to plot against him. (Pet. 10-11). Petitioner fails to provide the Court
5 with any evidence to support his claim that he lacked of knowledge or voluntary
6 participation in the plea agreement. (See Pet.) Accordingly, the Court holds that
7 Petitioner knowingly and voluntarily agreed to a waiver of his right to collateral attack
8 as contained in the plea agreement.

10 B. The Language of the Plea Agreement Explicitly Waives Petitioner's
11 Right to Collaterally Attack His Conviction

12 A valid waiver also must, by its terms, affirmatively waive Petitioner's right to 13 attack his conviction or sentence. See Nunez, 223 F3d at 958. In analyzing the terms
14 of a waiver, courts apply principles of contract, including the parol evidence rule. Id.
15 (citing United States v. Ajugwo, 82 F.3d 925, 928 (9th Cir. 1996)). Thus, courts look 16 to the "plain language" of the instrument, and need not consider extrinsic evidence in 17 the absence of facial ambiguity. Id.

18 Petitioner unambiguously agreed to waive collateral attack, except in a post-19 conviction collateral attack based on a claim of ineffective assistance of counsel, unless 20 the Court imposed a sentence above the high end of the guideline range. (See Plea
21 Agreement 9.) As previously mentioned, Petitioner's ineffective assistance of counsel
22 claims fail to demonstrate how Petitioner did not participate in the plea agreement
23 knowingly or voluntarily. (See Pet.) Further, the Court sentenced Petitioner at the low
24 end of an already lowered guideline range. (Pre-Sentence Rep. 12; Judgment 2.)
25 Accordingly, the clear terms of the plea agreement operate to waive collateral attack
26 by the Petitioner against his conviction and sentence.

27 Because Petitioner knowingly and voluntarily entered into his plea agreement, 28 and the terms of that agreement unambiguously waive Petitioner's statutory right to

1 collaterally attack his conviction and sentence, this Court cannot grant Petitioner relief
2 under § 2255.

4 IV. CONCLUSION AND ORDER

5 For these reasons, the Court DENIES Petitioner's motion for habeas relief under 6 § 2255. Moreover, because reasonable jurists would not find the Court's assessment of 7 the claims debatable or wrong, the Court DENIES a certificate of appealability. See 8 Slack v. McDaniel, 529 U.S. 473, 483-84 (2000). The clerk of the court is directed to 9 close the associated civil case.
